Considering a Masters Program After Graduation?

Ted Rogers School Offers Two: An MBA and MScM

Many students consider continuing their education beyond their undergraduate degree. Some students gain work experience before doing so, some study part-time, some study full-time, and some graduates go directly into a Master's Program immediately following graduation.

Our Master of Business Administration (MBA) Program

Leading for performance and well-being is central to our MBA curriculum. It is driven by four themes: diversity, technology, innovation, and entrepreneurship.

There are flexible part-time and full-time study options that you can pursue that fit your lifestyle. Program duration depends on several factors, including your academic background and the number of courses you are taking per semester.

Graduates have landed leadership roles in banking, government, sports business, and information technology, and many have launched their own companies.

Meet an MBA Alum

Kimberly
Lachman

Eager to switch careers and advance quickly, I pursued an MBA to equip myself with the knowledge and skills for new opportunities. The program's waived GMAT requirement, affordability, and positive reputation made it a perfect fit, especially early in my career.

The MBA not only expanded my knowledge base but also helped me build a strong network with classmates. Most importantly, the program connected me to a Research Assistant position that paved the way for my current role as a Project Lead. The MBA truly played a key role in propelling me forward in my professional journey.

MBA Fees

Domestic Fees: $24,000

International Fees: $54,000

Our Masters in Management Science Program (MScM)

The Master of Science in Management (MScM) is a 16-month program designed for aspiring researchers seeking careers in academia or research-driven industries. Gain knowledge about the complex problems that modern organizations are facing by working with leading thinkers and applied researchers.

Gaining expertise in both qualitative and quantitative research, you'll delve into the complexities of modern organizations, preparing you to tackle real-world challenges through impactful research.

You will be well-positioned to launch a fulfilling career in industry, academia, or government.

Meet an MScM Student

Sophia Chea

Driven by a passion for research and data analysis, I enrolled in the MScM program to refine my skills and transition into a research-focused career within the management field. This program offered the perfect blend of in-depth knowledge and practical application, exactly what I craved early on. The MScM has already made a significant impact.

I've gained valuable critical thinking skills, learned cutting-edge research techniques, and explored new data collection and analysis methods. These newfound tools have allowed me to approach my work as a Senior Analyst at Toronto Global with a fresh perspective. The program's focus on real-world application is particularly beneficial. I'm excited to leverage this knowledge to secure a Research Analyst position and make a meaningful contribution to the field.
